It was pioneered by a group of wealthy West End Jews, including Lady Rothschild. Its chief remit was to improve the quality of life for working lads from London's East End, whose families were mainly refugees from Germany and Russia. Another objective was to anglicize the boys, most of whom had Yiddish as their first language. In its early years, the Club facilitated educational and recreational opportunities, and holidays at a network of summer camps. The Club enjoyed the leadership of some remarkable individuals in its time. One was local campaigner Miriam Moses, who founded the Girls' Club in 1921 in premises in Hanbury Street. She was later elected as the first female mayor of Stepney in 1931. By the end of the war, the Boys' Club had moved from its original premises in Brady Street, via Durward Street, and thence to Hanbury Street, where it combined with the Girls' Club. The Club continued to thrive as a result of an expanding programme. This included a non-denominational creche; an Old Members' Club and camps and holidays in Britain and abroad. The Club offered amateur dramatics; sporting activities; a camera club; scouts and guides troupes and many practical workshops. Attendance began to decline in the 1970s, owing to the dispersal of the local Jewish community to other parts of London. The last youth members left around the late 1970s. The Hanbury Street site was sold to Tower Hamlets Council and renamed The Brady Arts and | 1925 - 1981 |

Old members continued to organise similar events and activities. The momentum of the original clubs continues, via reunions of past members, and its photographic archive. Sources consulted include: eastendarchive.org/COLLECTIONS/The Brady Club.aspx spitalfields.com/2018/05/03at-the-brady-clubs " Whitechapel's Brady Club Secrets uncovered in an old loft after 50 years" (East London Advertiser: 4th April, 2018) Bradyarchive.co.uk (Photographic Archive) Access Restrictions: Material within this collection has been closed under current Data Protection legislation as the records concerned contain sensitive personal data.
