| S/CSG | Fonds Title: Records of the Cable Street Group Extent: 12 boxes Description: Meeting notes, administrative and financial records of the Cable Street Group, together with extensive historical research notes and papers relating to the history of Cable Street collected by members of the Group. Also records documenting the anniversary celebrations, photographs and audio-visual material. The archive is formed of the separate papers of five leading members of the Group, along with a small additional group of records of unknown provenance. There is considerable overlap in the material between each of these collections as the work of the Group was collegiate in nature and administrative tasks were shared. Many of the letters from former Cable Street residents in the collection and other research documents were originally sent to Jil Cove following an appeal for information sent out under her name that was printed in the 'Jewish Chronicle'. This accumulated material was passed to Roger Mills as the person who produced most of the Group's written output. Click the PDF icon to browse descriptions to this collection in PDF format. The Cable Street Group was founded in May 1986 as a voluntary organisation. Five of the leading members were Jil Cove, Roger Mills, Derek Gadd, Liane Venner and Richard Humm. Jil Cove carried out secretarial duties, Derek Gadd oversaw finance and Roger Mills co-ordinated historical research and writing, to which everyone seems to have contributed. The Group's aim is to keep alive the memory and example of those who came together in October 1936 to stop the virulently anti-Semitic British Union of Fascists marching through a predominantly Jewish neighbourhood in east London. east. The Battle, which took place on 4 October 1936, was concentrated at the west end of Cable Street and spilled over into Whitechapel. Some 20,000 anti-fascist demonstrators gathered to prevent the BUF march, constructing barricades across the street. Most of the violent clashes which occurred on the day were between demonstrators and the Metropolitan Police, who were there in force to try and clear a path through for the BUF marchers. There were about 150 arrests and 175 people injured. In the end, the BUF were ordered to withdraw by their leader Sir Oswald Mosley, and they were escorted back to central London by the police.

The Cable Street Group interviewed elderly residents of Cable Street and veterans from October 1936. They produced a short book on the history titled 'The Battle of Cable Street: 4 October 1936 - A People's History' (with two editions, 1995 and 2011). In 1986, along with others, the Group organised an event to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Battle of Cable Street. The 70th, 75th and 80th anniversaries have also been commemorated. The Cable Street Group also kept a watching brief on the up-keep of the famous Cable Street Mural on the street itself, preventing vandalism and initiating repairs if necessary. The Mural was designed by Dave Binnington, and painted by him, Paul Butler, Ray Walker and Desmond Rochfort between 1979 and 1983.

Material within this collection has been closed under current Data Protection legislation as the records concerned contain sensitive personal data. Please check specific item level descriptions for details, and refer any queries to the Heritage Officer (Archives).

TH/9682 is a further collection of digital photographs of the 'Cable Street 80' celebration events, which does not, however, appear to have originated with the Cable Street Group itself. There are pictures of the exhibition opening, Max Levitas and other attendees, and the rally.

As well as the short book produced by the Cable Street Group itself, there are a number of published items in the Library collections which complement the archive. The following is a small selection:

|-------------|--|----------------------------------|
| | Negatives and prints of the Finkleston (also spelt Finkleson) family of 292A Cable Street; copies of photographs probably dating from the 1910s through to the 1940s. Includes one print of what seems to be an injured Blackshirt, presumably from the Battle of Cable Street. There is a photocopy of one of these photographs with brief notes on the family provided by Mr Arnold Schwartzman, grandson of Michael Finkleston and resident of Hollywood, California, United States of America. Michael Finkleston ran a boot repair shop in Cable Street until at least the early 1930s. His children were Gertrude Black, Ben (the eldest son), Eve Stanfder, Rose Schwartzman and Harold (youngest son). Gertrude and Eve emigrated to the United States. Request: YES - You can order this material to consult in our Reading Room. | |
